

MURPHY WAS AFTER THE SHERIFF'S JOB HIMSELF

So He Told Percy Nagle, and Later Didn't Learn It Was a Joke Until He'd Side-tracked His Own Candidate.

It has come to light that Charles F. Murphy was himself a candidate for Tom Foley's place on the Democratic ticket for Sheriff, and the story must be true, for the leader of Tammany himself said so.

Percy Nagle went to Tammany Hall in a well developed plot to get Eugene Gubler for the job, saying: "We can elect McGroarty." A damper was placed upon the enterprise, however, when Mr. Murphy said with assured eloquence: "Why, I am a candidate for that place myself." "Oh, if that is the case," said Nagle, "then I withdraw." "I do not then dis-covering the by-play," later he got covering the by-play, "I have got involved in the present district leaders. You deserve all my time to his election."

A few days later Nagle was saluted by Murphy with "Hello, Alderman," following the latter's arrival.

"The same trick," came back Nagle quick as a wink. The exchange was noted by many in the Wigwam at the time, but the facts supporting Nagle's claim were old news and did not deserve all my time to his election."

BIG GUN PRACTICE AT NIGHT

Rumbling from Fort Monroe Gives Norfolk Earthquake Scare.

"By industry we thrive," said Maurice Ahern, the lightning typewriter of Tammany Hall, as he pounded away at the keys in record time.

"Yes," added Charlie Ackerson, his assailant, "but it's the pace that kills. If we had an election twice a year Coronet Harbors would be a company of fellows with great regularity."

"Well, that would be nothing to the post-mortem that the Hearst crowd and the Republicans will be discussing after election day," said Ahern.

Paradise Jimmy Oliver and Billy Watson, the perpetual Sergeant-at-Arms, passed each other in the corridor of Tammany Hall to-day. There was an evident coolness which the other Tammanyites present could not help noticing.

"Don't you and Jimmy speak as you used to?" asked Jack Murphy.

"Oh, no," answered Billy. "We can't get together even by wire."

"But I don't know the young person he knows well enough," retorted Billy. "But his right is a curving dim and his memory has failed him."

The others are wondering to-day what caused the estrangement.

"Alfred Johnson, our social Under-Sheriff, has certainly gone some, and fast," said Senator Jim Frawley.

"He started his career as executive clerk under Mayor Grant, then became secretary of the Building Department, to come to the front now as Under-Sheriff."

"But has he any money?" asked Jim Frawley.

"Money," answered the Senator. "Why, he helped one of those trust companies out of a difficult yesterday and can't get out of another one or two others. Why, he owns fine tobacco, smokes the cigars and for his friends nothing is too good. Only an hour ago he was in the office of the Treasurer of the Fire Department. He said that Tom Foley will win by 2,000. He says that Foley is the candy man."

"Oh, no; just speculated at the right time," said Dan Donegan, innocently.

"The other news was Frawley's an expert gambler, as abundantly as Donegan's interrogation.

"Little Johnnie" McCann, as the Tammany candidate for Alderman in the Fifteenth Assembly District is popularly known, has an electrical hand-shake.

"Why, that's full of Marconigrams," exclaimed a friend to-day after receiving a shock from McCann, who is under five feet.

"That comes from studying wireless electricity," explained McCann. "When I first began to study politics he was a telegraph operator, and I took to the game, but wanted the wireless for mine, that being pretty good. The wireless is a great part of the electric game that have the electrolysis of the system, as you may have judged from that last handshake. He is a worker. He is always doing favors for people, and every fudge on the bench, and many a poor chap who has got into trouble can thank McCann for having him out of the mud, and they may have been home through wireless politics, too."

Politics on the upper west side this fall is bringing out family men who never before caught the spirit of a political campaign, and to-day the Independent Republicans of the Seventeenth District, who are opposing Harry W. Mack, organization leader, sprung a redoubtable ally on their opponents in the person of Mrs. Margaret Bradshaw, who has a record as the workingman's friend and champion. Mrs. Bradshaw has devoted most of her time in the past six years to work for the members of the uniformed force, the police and city employes, who have appeared before committees at Albany and in Washington, and is known and respected both at City Hall and in the homes of the poorest work-
